

CALL FOR PAPERS!

Fri, January 21st, 2011 – Sat, January 22nd, 2011

Kellogg Center, East Lansing, Michigan

www.stewardshipnetwork.org/2011Conference/Abstracts

The Stewardship Network and Midwest Land Trust Alliance are seeking abstracts for presentations at the 2011 Science, Practice, and Art of Restoring Native Ecosystems Conference. Submitted abstracts will be reviewed and selected for either an oral presentation or a poster presentation. The major theme of this year's conference is Stewardship and A Sense of Place. Deep local knowledge of Place is an invaluable resource for understanding our role caring for natural lands and waters and how our work relates to regional, national and global events. We're interested in hearing about your research and experience of the relationship between people and the land they work to protect.

Oral Presentations: Abstracts are invited from all topics relating to ecological restoration, including although not limited to natural areas ecology, invasive species ecology and management, native habitats, use of prescribed fire, successful partnerships, policy innovations, and economics. However, preference will be given to abstracts reflecting the main theme of the Conference. Presentations are arranged in a concurrent session format and will be no longer than an hour each. Oral presenters chosen will receive complimentary registration for the day of their presentation.

Poster Presentations: Abstracts are invited from all topics relating to ecological restoration, including although not limited to natural areas ecology, invasive species ecology and management, native habitats, use of prescribed fire, successful partnerships, policy innovations, and economics. Presenters chosen as posters will have their posters displayed in an exhibit during the Friday evening program. Please note that poster presenters will need to pay for their own registration.

Student Poster Competition: A $100 prize will be given to the first place winner of the student poster competition. Judging will take place on site during the Poster Exhibit at the 2011 Conference and will be conducted by various experienced members of the natural areas management community.
